Adventure at the Popham Colony

I didn't mention a place, but what I did segue to was my interpretation of Peter's comment "lets build a booth" to be irrelevant and out of place at the time, and I connected that to the same thing that happened when Jesus was at the house of Mary and how Jesus "scolded the scolder" for not letting her sit with Jesus, rather than tend to house keeping, the point was that we need to believe in "justification by faith" and let the "works" that spontaneously arise from such faith occur naturally rather than artificially create an illusion of work or housekeeping. The problem is that its such a blatant copy of the Dresden Files that I'm surprised it hasn't caused a lawsuit.
